This preparation has now been extensively in us by the principal fockmasters of Victoria and the adjacent colonies for upwards of twelve menths, and the demand for it is daily increasing. Its complete efficacy as cure has long become an established fact and the testimonials which have been received from several of the most experienced squatters are of themsetves sufficient to mark it as one of the most important discoveries of modern days in the interests of the pastoral community. It is more certain, more simple in its application, and considerable less costly than any other remody that has ever been applied to the prevention or cure of scab in sheep.

The Sydney Morning Berald.

SATURDAY, APRIL 23, 1864.

In the Legislative Assembly yesterday,
In reply to questions put by hoa members, the following information was given by Ministers—That it was not the intention of the Government to establish a punt at Aberdeen, and that the Government had no information that any lives had recently been lost in consequence of there having been no such punt hitherto; that the survey of the line of relivary to Murrurundi was complete; that the matter of the alleged encroachment upon the public reserve at Flegatsi Hill should be duly investigated.
The following papers were laid on the table and at Flagatafi Hill should be duly investigated.

The following papers were laid on the table and ordered to be printed—the Postmester General's annual report, and a return of all correspendence and papers ordered by the House relative to an alleged illegal sale of auriferous land at Rocky River.

Mr. Lucas brought up the report from the select committee appointed to enquire as to the reclamation of Blackwattle Swamp.

Mr. Danoar moved for a return of tenders for runs during the years 1861 and 1862, on which deposits had been paid, and of runs which had been forfeited by the non-payment of fees.

payment of fees.

T. Wilson eposed the motion, on the ground the compliance with it would occasion a great MI. Wilson opposed the motion, on the ground that the compliance with it would occasion a great expense and loss of time, and the return when rendered would give no more information than was already easily accessible to the public.

The motion was negatived upon a division of 21 to 12.

The following petitions were ordered to be printed.

A petition presented by Mr. Caldwall in favour of a permissive liquer law, and one presented by Mr. Garrett from Mr. Alexander Brand.

Garrett from Mr. Alexander Brand.

A motion by Mr. FAUCHT for the discharge of the select committee appointed to inquire into the circumstances connected with the morigage on the property of the Scota Church, Sydney, in order to render the evidence taken before the committee available for the future service of Parliament, was under discussion when the sitting of the House, for the present session, was terminated by the summons of the Usher of the Black Rod.

HIS EXCELLENCY'S speech-be it understood the speech of his Ministers—in proroguing the Parliament, is the most vague and impotent of all such conclusions. It states that the Legislature has laboured long; that its labours have not resulted in the passing of many new laws that unsettled questions have not been disposed of; that financial projects have not been com-passed; that the equalization of income and expenditure has not been accomplished. There are, however, some congratulations—that severe and continuous labour is brought to a close; that zeal and industry have been displayed which cannot fail to be appreciated by the country; that reductions—the promise of greater—have been made; and that the resources of the country are sufficient to sustain the losses and calamities to which it has been subject. Then we have hopes for the future—that the way has been paved for the more easy solution of unsettled questions-that further reductions will be effected in the expenditure, and measures adopted which will develop our resources, pro mote the general welfare, and maintain the

we do not blame the Ministers for the emptiness of their speech. What could they say? They began their administration with "a beggarly account of empty boxes." In spite of pompous labelling and a magnificent inventory, the search only proved the total absence of all that was available at the bash of a directly in the market. They have the total absence of all that was available at the bank, or disposable in the market. They have held their ground through an opposition at first fierce and powerful. The financial confusion into which the country was left placed a barrier betwirt the late party in power which they have not been able to overleap, though they have had many a run and many a spring.

The Ministry have indeed had other difficulties to face. There is a more wearing and vexatious kind of opposition than the organised and vigorous attacks of an open and compact foe, the shock of battle, and defeat or victory. Perhaps not a dozen men have occupied the attention of the House for the shock of the schedules and special appropriations. The addition of these brought up the total to £1,926,457. An additional sum was put down five have consumed the hours in the weakest, most watery, most turbid, and most offensive stuff that ever drawled and dribbled from legisstuff that ever drawled and dribbled from legis-lative lips. The Ministry has possessed one quality as marked as their opponents—tenseity and endurance—a resolution not to be beaten or driven off; and what may perhaps be deemed equally to their honour, a patience under the inflictions of their new allies, who retreated in a body from the camp of their adversaries, and gave them the benefit of their adversaries, and gave them the benefit of their adversaries, and gave them the benefit of the votes and the disgrace of their support. Did ever nature assemble in one cage birds of such curious vocal powers, as have lately whooled, and screeched, and whistled? The effect has been often most striking. The members present, on the rising of any of these gentlemen were taken with a sudden impulse. They flung themselves from the floor of the House into one of these more attractive. House into one of those more attractive regions, where they seek either literary or corporeal food—to the library, where they are always on the search for precedents—such is their large of salways on the search for precedents—such is their love of order; or to the refreshment room—such is their taste for beer. There they find the well-known appliances which remind them of their most busy and happy days. Among the pastimes of mischievous youth has been the breaking-up of these retreats. The bell rings; in come the members from their various recreations. various recreations; the House is counted: again they retire; the bell rings again—and this for hours together. It is this fatiguing employment to which we presume the second clause of the Speech refers when it tells the gentlemen that they must "look forward with a feeling of relief to the cessation of labours so severe and continuous as those which they have

When we look at the results of the session When we look at the results of the session it is truly disappointment and frustration. The great error of the late Ministry was denving the existence of deficit, or in producing it under a form which confused the judgment of their friends, and put them in a false position. Whether it would have been possible, after so many bright pictures of financial prosperity, to encounter the dissatisfaction resulting from such disclosures may be another question; but they placed themselves in such a light that it was impossible for either their friends or their foce to support them. No one could move a vote support them. No one could move a vote of confidence in a financial statement which was of connected in a mancial statement which was sustained by one part of the Ministry, and fiercely contradicted by another.

The present Ministry would have certainly lost their seats but for the difficulty of replacing them, when they came before the country with that tariff reversing its fiscal policy and threatening its commerce with ex-tinction. We trust that the lesson has been worth the cost; and that though, while opposing the experiment, we prevented the adjustment of our expenditure to our income, we have sufficiently convinced the gentlemen in power that a protective policy will not be assented to by the intelligence, and we believe not by a majority in this country. There are, indeed, rumours that the Ministry has abandoned none of its protective principles, and that it contem-plates in some other form to give them a local habitation. All we can say is that, if this be true, the most strenuous opposition awaits it. The wiser course would be to abandon at once and for ever a cause which is shown to be hopeless, but which, if successful even for a moment, would entail consequences of a most disastrous nature. The plan for the Ministry if it has coursee to adopt it, is to throw off from the central Government a hundred forms of expenses, which are unsuited to the present times, and which, if borne at all, ought to be levied and borns by the people who are specially benefited. If new taxes, however, are requisite, there are some taxes, however, are requisite, there are some means open that may yield a moderate addition to our present revenue—without embarrassing trade or interfering with our fiscal system. The colony must take the course which any wise housekeeper pursues in similar circumstances. If the income cannot be raised to the expendi-ture, the expenditure must be reduced to the income. It is said to be impossible, but nothing s impossible to prudent courage. We presume the Ministers will again meet the present House, because they can have too little reason to dismiss an Assembly which has shown itself comformable, and certainly more subser-vient than a new House would be. A new House would have a long tenure before it, and include a number of men hungry for a share in the advantages of place, and probably more qualified in their own esteem for office than any who have yet tasted its sweets. Before, however, any great fiscal change will be admitted by the Upper House a new election must give the final decision of the people.

The present Ministry undertook government

The present Ministry at a time when it required some moral courage, and their success has been at least equal to the probabilities in their favour. We believe we have had less corruption under their adminishave had less corruption under their adminis-tration than may be commonly expected under our form of government, and that they have on several occasions displayed an independence which if not wisely chosen has nevertheless the attractions of contrast. We hope that for the ensuing session they will be content with effecting that which they have promised—namely, the necessary enactments "for the purpose of placing our financial affairs in a sound and satisfactory condition."

DURING the detailed discussion of the Estimates the attention of Parliament and the public is specially directed to the consideration particular votes—whether they are needed at all, or whether what is proposed is in excess of the requirements of the case. Before this detailed examination begins, the Treasurer, in his budget speech, deals with totals. He compares the outlay with the income, and the affairs of one year with the affairs of another. affairs of one year with the affairs of another. When the Estimates, however, are finished, he indulges in no such general review. By that time he has had about enough of it, and is only too glad to bundle hon. members out of the Chamber and turn the key. Such a review, however, is expedient, especially after a session of great financial discussion and economical reform. What is the difference between the estimate as originally proposed, and the estimate as finally carried? What is the measure of the economy achieved, and how far does that economy go in meeting the far does that economy go in meeting the requirements of the country?

The annual expenditure is divisible into two parts—that, viz., which is under the control of the House, and that which is not. The schedules to the Constitution Act, and the Special Appropriations are not alterable by annual vote. They are expressly provided for by Acts, in order that they may not be tampered with. This part of our expenditure amounts now to over £400,000, of which nearly three-fourths for loans, to the amount of £451,127. The amount appropriated for the service of the year by the Act which yes erday received the vice-regal assent is £1,370,475 11s. 41d. This is exclusive of the schecules and special appropriations, which will add £400,900 to the amount, attons, which will add £400,900 to the amount, and make the total authorised expenditure for the year £1,771,375 11s. 4\frac{1}{3}d. There is also a further sum of £406,718 12s. 3d. appropristed for paying off the supplementary expenditure of 1863 and previous years, but as this is temporarily discharged by the issue of Treasury bonds, it will not become the supplementary expenditure of 1863 and previous years, but as this is temporarily discharged by the issue of Treasury bonds, it will not become the supplementary of the suppl rarily discharged by the issue of Treasury bonds, it will not press with any weight on this year's income. A part of this deficit ought by rights to be paid out of surplus revenue this year, but this is now impossible as there will be no surplus. But if our financial promises are worth a straw, we ought to pay the whole of this deficit in three years, by which time the Treasury bonds will become due. However, the obligation is now thrown forward to the next year and the year following, for it is quite certain that we shall do nothing towards redeeming the promise this year. Leaving that out deeming the promise this year. Leaving that out of account therefore, the positive obligations for of account therefore, the positive obligations for the year stand at the sum already mentioned of £1,771,375 11s. 4\frac{1}{2}d.

The insertion of that odd farthing is a muster stroke. Who will say now that the most minute and cheese-paring comomy has not been exer-cised? Could that farthing have been saved? of course it could not, otherwise would not Mr. FAGAR have eagerly snipped it off. How happy we are to live under an administration so carewe are to live under an administration so careful of the people's money that not even a farthirg is wasted! We trace this odd farthing to the Post-office establishment, notoriously a carefully managed department. The expense of this establishment for the year is to be exactly £31,213 12s. 01d. Who is it gets the odd farthing? Postmaster General; perhaps it is the messenger. But suppose, when he comes to be paid, he has not change for a halfpenny, who will less the firsthire above the firsthire. lose the farthing thea—the Government or the boy? The latter, we should say, decidedly. So that perhaps there may be a further saving of a farthing after all.

Comparing the original estimate with the comparing the original estimate with the actual appropriation, there appears to be a saving of £155,081 8s. 7\footnote{d}. A little more than half this saving is due to the abelition of the Immigration vote. Of the remainder, about a half is due to reductions in the Works department, and especially to the cutting off of a proposed vote of £30,000 for police buildings. There are also some scattered minor reductions in other density. ome scattered minor reductions in other depart-

The saving thus effected is expected to be supplemented by the receipt of £30,000 for inlend Customs, to be collected on the Murray, and by £15,000 extra railway receipts beyond the original calculation. There is something rather problematical about both these expectations, and the Treasurer would perhaps gladly sell his expectations for half the amount in hard cash. But assuming that all anticipations will be realised to the full, the savings and the increased revenue put together amount only to about £200,000, and this is not enough.

Mr. FAGAR originally showed us that if we went on as we were going when he first took office we should find ourselves at the end of 1864 with a deficit of over £900,000—this deficit being compounded of about £400,000 already accumulated as the produce of previous years, and £500,000 the product of 1864 itself. The former half of this compound we have temporarily disposed of by the issue of three years' I reasury bonds; the latter half we have reduced by £300,000 by economy and fresh revenue, but that still leaves £300,000 as a deficit for this year.

Mr. FAGAR's estimate of revenue for the year was £1,556,130, while his authorised and anticipated expensiture is £1,771,375 11s. 41d. anticipated expensiture is £1,771,375 11s. 41d. This comparison would show a deficit of only £208,245 for the year. But then, if we are to take the showing of the first quarter's revenue as any guide, the estimated receipis will not be garnered. The total revenue for the first quarter of the year was only £290,305; and if we take further into account £180,000 of pastoral revenue, which is not paid in till the last quarter of the year, the total revenue at this rate will only be £1,341,220, or £221,910 below Mr. Eagan's estimate, and £430,155 below the authorised expenditure. The first quarter of the penditure. The first quarter of the present year has certainly been a dull one, and we may look for improvement in the latter part of the year, but certainly not enough to fetch up arrears. Nor can we anticipate much from additional economies to be carried out during the recess. Even if the new scheme to be propounded next session should meet with par-liamentary approval, and should be carried out with the least possible delay, it can hardly fructify much before the close of the year. We

France Fernal Colonisation at Calebonia —We are glad to learn from letters from France that the Government has resolved to abandon the project of panal celonisation, and that the convicts now at few Calebonia are the last that will be sent. The Consul (M. Sentis) represented to the Government of the Emperor the extreme repugnance of the people of Australia to the experiment, and the difficulties which might arise in its prosecution. This consideration had a very powerful influence in the decision. It is in the light very grantifying, as showing the goodwill of the French Government, for, of course, we creat have no right in the abstract to interrupt the project. The convicts sant already we understand are not persons beyond the probable reach of referenation.

CORONER'S INQUEST.—The inquest begun before the Ciy Cotomer on Lhursday was resumed and concluded at the Spectrant's Array yesleday afternoon. The lavestigation had inference to the death of figurella Watts, wife of an cysterman, whe died on Tuesday. The evidence of decard's mother, brother, and a servent, showed that Watte had often beaten his wife, and that he neglected to provide her with the recessaries of life. They stated that the hundred was a frenkard, and on one coonsion had turned his wife out of doors, and threwn a buckeful of water over her. In consequence of the hundrad's literatment deceased went to live with her mother, and when on her death had been accelerated by her hundred's misconduct. The hundred, Philip Watts, denied the trath of the preceding allegations, and averred that he gave nearly all his sarnings to deconsad, who, with her mother, had been accustomed to get drank. The avidance of married women, neighbourn, to a great extent substantiated the hundred's statement. A post morden examination was made by Drs. SHRUBS, can assure them that during the past year they have made considerable additions to that particular department, and not less so to their superior collection of Greenhouse and Botos Plants.

They beg to remind those in the country who would favour them with their orders, that the most strict attention is vaid to packing, and note but plants true to mame, and well established, leave their nursery, while their charges are exceedingly moderate. They feel confident that in every

This is unquestionably one of the most valuable properties that has been submitted to public competition for many years, and is now brought into the market by the Executors to close up the estate.

years, and is now brought into the mer are to close up the estate.

The central position of the wharf property at the western end of King-street, its close proximity to George-street, to which it has direct, easy, and sale access, readers it the most eligible spot in Darling Harbour for the arrival and departure of steam vessels, more particularly for those carrying many passengers, unually leaving the wherves at eleven o'clock at night for the different ports along the cost.

eleven o'clock at night for the different ports along the coset.

Immediately fronting the wharf, and extending round into King-street, are sour very spacious stores capable of roceiving many hundred tons of goods. On the south side of the store is a vacant allotmont, which might be used as a second entrance to the wharf by means of the reserved road from King-street at the rear of the stores, and by this cruplets a road quite round the buildings from the wharf, one gateway being for the entrance, the other for exit, saving space and preventing conflation.

The attention of the managers and directors of steam companies, of merchants and ship owners, is particularly invited to this property.

Stores in Sussex-street.—These have long been known as the warshouses and bonded stores of the firm of Messex.

A. B. Smith and Company, but are now in the occupation of Messex Campbell, Healett, and Lowther, importers and produce agents.

The Stores are creded of stone, containing 8 floors each, having a frontage to the west side of Sussex-street of 90 feet 8 inches. They will be sold in three lots, as aboven upon the plan. Lots Nes. I and 3 have additional stores, with stabling at the rear. The southers boundary extends to 140 feet 6 inches. Back entrance for the three from King-street.

WARRANTED SOUND and NEVER DISEASED.

These sheep are now very superior, have been bred with great care, and consist of a very large proportion of ewes.

Stores, horses, drays, working bullocks, milking cowe, woelshed, recently erected, with highly-improved screw-press, household furniture, implements, &., to be taken at a valuation.

These stations were among the very carliest selections on the Fitzroy, and are without doubt the finest sheep country, as well as the best and most compact runs in that favourise locality. The distance from the port is only thirty miles, and before long produce will, no doubt, be shipped direct to the London market. Even now, wool is taken to Sydney by salling vessels at about 12s., and by atseamers at 17s. 6d. per hale only. Supplies also can be laid down on the stations at a nomical cost for carriage, and whether to work alone, or as a depot to other country farther inland, these stations are invaluable. The increasing importance of Rockhampton, together with the great population gathering there, and at the gold and copper mines now being opened in that neighbourhood, will cause an extensive demand for fast stock, and combine to make this serving ample room for increase and fattening.

23 MOST IVALUABLE PASTORAL PROPERTY.

The quantity of stock is also light, compared with the capabilities, leaving ample room for increase and fattening.

23 MOST and CO. are instructed to assure intending puchasers that these stations are now in the most carriage renders them most desirable properties.
